Mates meet head-on

Old mates became new fees at Connor Reserve last Sunday when Preston Makedonia drew 1-1 with Footscray J.U.S.T. On opposite sides were Jim Tensey and Gary Cole (pictured above), former Heidelberg team mates, making their debuts with new clubs. Who'll be national coach?

Tomorrow, March 8, is when the ASF will appoint - or rappoint - its national coach.

It's anything but a secret that the in-cumbent, Les Scheinflug, has a fight on his hand: Frank Arok is the strong tip to the over ake over.

Arok has repeatedly told newsmen hat he wouldn't seek the appointment

- but "would be happy to accept if it rere offered."

Now, we believe, such an offer has been made — by at least some influential ASF officials.

Ultimately it will be Sir Arthur George's preference that will swing the votes.

The veteran president knows how to put up a convincing argument — if he wants to be personally involved.

And rumor has it that Sir Arthur has lately been convinced that Australia's best chance of reaching the World Cupfinals in Mexico is under Frank Arok.

"One of the greatest tragedies in Australian soccer would be to replace Les Scheinflug as the national coach."

That was Raul Blanco's comment about the alleged move by the A.S.F. The Melita Eagles coach is Scheinflug's assistant at national team level and has been since 1981.

"Since the departure of Rale Rasic various coaches have been tried in the position but the results were never there. However, since Scheinflug took over, the team gained more credibility and respect. It is not easy to compete, at either youth or senior level, against the opponents we have had and Les managed to obtain a lot of good results with both teams."

to obtain a for oil good teams.

Blanco was offered the position as assistant coach before the World Youth Championships in Australia in 1981. He was asked by Scheinflug to assist in the preparation of the youth team.

"I owe Les a lot because at the time I had a bad slip, and after being relegated with St. George and poor results at Marconi, there were not many people who believed in me then."

Blanco's coaching career started when Rale Rasic asked him to become his assistant at Pan Hellenic (today's Olympic) after he had hung up his boots at the club in 1974.

When he returned he had one year at Sydney City as Eddie Thompson's assistant. He signed a two-year contract with Melita Eagles in 1983 and continues what he calls a wonder-ful relationship with the club in 1984.

"Melita have the reputation of a well organised club and although we cannot spend money on new players we will still do well. I aim, at winning the championship but then so does every coach in the country so, to be realistic, I think that we will be happy to finish in the top six."

think that we will be happy to finish in the top six."

Blanco likes the new N.S.L. set-up because he thinks that changes were necessary.

He speaks from experience as he had a rich soccer career, which started with the juniors of Racing in Argentina.

He came here at the age of 25 to play with the top Sydney side Prague in 1967. He stayed there until 1973 and during those six years played alongside such stars as Les Scheinflug who was also the skipper and fellow mid-fielder Jimmy Rooney to whom he refers as "The greatest soccer thoroughbred ever to come to this country."

Farina, Sermanni Arrows at last

Tommy Sermanni both pulled on the new-look colors for Canberra Arrows on Sunday – but not before a week of feverish behind-thescenes activity.

The Farina saga dragged on for weeks after Farina's ex-club Mareeba in Brisbane, whacked a $20,000 transfer fee on the 20-year-old's head — a fee later reduced on appeal by Farina to $15,000 by the Queensland Soccer Federation.

Still Farina was unhappy saying he spent but a month with the club as a 16-year-old.

Farina's father offered $5000 to buy out his son's con-tract. Mareeba refused — just as it had Canberra's pitifully poor $3000 offer.

with but 72 hours remaining before the game, Canberra's board acted — like lightning and the deal was done within 24 hours. Canberra offered Mareeba just over $9000 — and Farina was Canberra'a player.

Sermanni, at 29, is highly rated by Collins. The midfielder began his career with Scottish club Albion Rovers, then played for Blackpool and Torquay in England.

JANKOVICS SEEKS TRANSFER

Mark Jankovics may be on the move from Marconi.

The central striker, with one year of his contract still to go, is on the lookout for another club. Following the arrival of David Lowe at Marconi, it looks like Lowe, Brown and Lieata will be the front line for 1984. Steve Winn has gone to Heidelberg, but with only room for three players up front, it looks ominous for Jankovics. An idea of using Jankovics as sweeper has died down.

Blacktown City, still suffering from an acute goal-shy forward line would do well to buy Jankovics. With Phil O'Connor and Jankovics Blacktown would think about taking more than just a mere back seat in this year's NSL.

Network 0/28 still is tops for soccer

As Australian soccer and the National League enter their most exciting period in 1984, Network 0/28 has announced an even more extensive coverage of the game.

On Sundays at 7.30 pm, viewers can see the new season of "Match Of The Day" with Les Murray presenting highlights from two top clashes in the Australian and National Conferences. The weekly program also will cover the special Inter-Conference play-offs throughout the season as well as offer an extensive look at the excitement of the 1984 NSL Cup series.

"Match of the Day" kicked off last Sunday and this Sunday will feature highlights of the Australian Conference clash between St George and Canberra and the National Conference clash between Conference clash between Green Gully Ajax and South Melbourne Hellas (previewed at right).

Sent off: Fontana (W) 4th Referee: Glyn Davies 5.

It was a disastrous first round for Wollongong in Canberra on Sunday.

Not only did it lose its NSL clash 40 — it also had striker Glen Fontana sent off and had talented defender Ray Vlietstra badly injured and carried off the park on a stretcher.

Vlietstra suffered a burst eardrum and could be out for a month. "Arrows, Arrows," was the chant from the home fans. And it was understandable. Cahera hoera had achieved its bestever opening game win by trashing Wolongong. But it was a win against only 16-men. Wolongong's chances virtually were ended in the fourth minute when referee Glyn Davies sent off sthere Fondang for an off-the-ball incident involving Canberra defender, Paul Ontong.

Like the Wollongong players, the decision astounded me. Davies didn't appear to have seen the incident which was flagged by linesman, Bob Marshall.

Right on half-time Bundalo again struck the ball with great pace from well out and again Franken denied him by fingertipping the shot out for a corner.

You had to pity the Heidelberg defence when Ken Murphy and Doug Brown cut loose in the second half, cheered on by a crowd of more than 11,000 people.

Murphy had moved up to join Brown up front when Charlie Egan was sent off over a clash with Don Mcleod behind play in the 35th minute. That send-off unsettle had seemed a foregone conclusion came only after a lot of hard work.

Asked whether he thought he was headed for the national team, due to his recent good form, Crino said: "I was pleased to score for the second week in a row, but although it's the aim of every player to play for his country, I've got a little way to go yet."

Murphy had been foiled by Olver, and so too had Brown who, in addition, had missed with a low shot after breaking clear of Don Macleod and Yankos at the edge of the area.

Then Heidelberg coach Brian Garvey decided to replace Macleod with young Robert Krajacic. Certainly, Macleod had just had a hairraising miss with a tackle, but he is an integral part of the side—a hard man who always gives his all.

Man of the Match: DAVID RATCLIFFE (St George)

Greedy made a surprise return to the Saints after his "retirement", following a breakdown in contract talks with the club's other goalie, Mike Fraser.

Now the chances are that Greedy will play out the season — and Fraser may ask for a transfer.

Play evened out in the second half and most of the action was fast, if not always accurate.

Both sets of strikers were performing well below their best. This was below their best. Inis was especially noticeable with the highly rated Marshall Soper and Robbie Slater.

In the 46th minute Barton had his third match-winning chance but his close-range shot was scrambled to corner.

Two minutes later Peter

Katholos came on as a sub and within seconds had a chance to prove to coach Manfred Schaefer that his omission from the starting team was mistake.

Katholas received a pass some six metres from goal, took aim — and slipped an easy shot wide of Greedy's goal.

In the last 20 minutes both teams made renewed efforts to clinch the points.

Barton, then Patikas smashed shots high and then Barton muffed his incredible fifth chance by heading weakly into the goalie's arms from a few steps.

But, perhaps, it was just as well: neither team would have deserved to lose this match.

In both sides the superbly organised defences ruled the roost against disjoined attacks.

The Olympic midfield was a trifle more impressive and Katholos will find it very difficult to force his way back into the team: coach Schaefer is anything but enamored in his style of football.

Arok, also the NSW State coach gearing up for the Queensland match, was most impressed with Olympic's display.

He said after the game that he was considering several Olympians for the NSW side — Dakos, Jennings, Raskopoulos, Patikas and Soper can expect to be called up.

The four-day camp brought logether the squad which had sained a new ceach and four new players only weeks before the start of the season.

This truly was a game of contrasting halves!

Both coopese left that their respective teams should have done better (Mikedonia in the first half and JUST in the second), yet when it was all over, Bobby McLachlan and Peter Ollerton agreed, that under the circumstances, sharing the points wasn't such a bad thing after all.

To add to Makedonia's woes, Dobson received his marching orders from referee Voutsinas just before half time. Makedonia started the second half with a lot more purpose and application. Curiously J.U.S.T. seemed rather complacent or over-confident and instead of hammering home the advantage, it allowed Makedonia to take charge.

John Stevenson, the most experience NSL player on the park, best summed up what George Cross has to do to avoid a relegation struggle.

"We created three great chances and at this level you've got to convert at least one in three to win matches," he said.

Stevenson was realistic enough bowever to admit that overall Cross did not do enough to win it.

"I felt we had a slight edge in the first half, then Gully put us under pressure after the break.

Cross must get a central defender to take some of the load off Jim O'Reilly if it is to avoid relegation and that should become the more important recruiting target ahead of the Dennis Boland acquisition, in my books. Certainly Cross had no one to match Gully centreback Stuart Cannell who stood out like a beacon in this match, winning most of the aerial duels against Carl Glider and making several timely inter-ceptions.

His performance certainly made up for the inexperience of the two newcomers in the back four — Ron Kremers and Paul Beranic Gully's scoring chances in-cluded a clever Bobby Toal chip which beat the keeper but which was cleared off the line by Steve Richardson.

Then there was a jinking run by Toal to feed Ken Smart on the edge of the box. The former Albion Rovers striker was brought down as he turned to shoot but the resultant free kick was spooned over the bar by David Smallman.

Cross coach Tommy Tray-nor said after the game, "We could have sneaked it but I'm reasonably pleased. "Realistically we've got to aim for a mid-table position in our first season — if we finish sixth I'd be in raptures."

Newcastle United lost its speedy forward David its composure and overpowered the league newcomer before a disappointing crowd of 1,500.

John McGlynn, the man who worked so hard to have soccer at Penrith, was bitterly disappointed. Not with the result, for he, like so many others at Penrith, does not believe in miracles, but with the crowd response. "Well, we are bound to do better with Croatia in the next round," said McGlynn. He obviously was referring to the crowd figure, as I doubt that Penrith could do much against the in-form Croatia. The match started on a disastrous note for Newcastle. David Jones was flying down the left flank in the opening minute and only a diving tackle by Paul Daley, who conceded a corner, kept the Newcastle man at bay. However, Jones received a cut above his ankle which later needed six stitches and was replaced by Warren Heslam. Heslam replaced Ralph Maier at fullback, Maier switching to midfield, and Newcastle was left with two front runners, Malcolm McClelland and Simon Brandt. When Ian Hunter broke through on the left flank to send his left footer just wide from an angle after seven minutes, it fooked as if Newcastle would be hard pressed to protect its goal.

However, the expectations of the local crowd never came for fution as Penrith only managed one more shot and that was by Roy Cotton (which a first period wide) during the first period will be decided in the MSL, Newcastle took to its task in the same efficient and organised fashion it displayed last season.

Its engine room operated to perfection with Joe Senkalski and Craig Mason controlling proceedings and McQuarrie and Maier supporting the attack down both flanks. An incredible number of through balls went past the bewildered Penrith defence, sending either Brandt or McLelland wide with Maier and McQuarrie charging in to support.

Penrith had more of the play in the second half but apart from some good runs by Hunter and Brian Jackson, Newcastle never looked troubled. In two devastating moments at Olympic Park last Sunday, the great wait ended! And it was another Juventus new boy, Richard Miranda, bought from Box Hill, and played out of position in the Buffalo Gold Summer Cup, who had a hand in the opening goal. Although Miranda was back in his best role — as a midfielder — he didn't have a great game. However, he possesses a prodigious throw-in and this weapon was unveiled against Croatia, to great effect in the 67th minute.

Miranda unleashed a huge throw-in from the right, Ward headed on and there was Sweeney, nipping in behind the Croatia defence, to prod the ball over the line just four metres away from the near post.

Adelaide City Juventus broke a seven-year drought when it beat West Adelaide Hellas 1-0 to record for the first time a first-round victory in the NSL.

Peter Rankin gave Juventus the points when he skotted a ground shot past Gary Sproul in the 82nd minute.

"Juve" deserved victory, but took an awfully long time to shake off a youthful and determined Hellas which matched its experienced opponents for much of the match.

Hellas, now under the guidance of Sam Salabasidis, should not be totally unhappy with this result but the club is in desperate need of some experienced players, particularly on the forward line.

As much possession as it had, Hellas was unable to con-sistently penetrate Juventus' well-drilled backlines.

Juventus on the other hand put Hellas' defence under bursts of pressure and only the good work of the defence and some sharp saves by goalkeeper Gary Sproul kept 'Juve' at bay until late in the game. Steve Maxwell, operating from the midfield, had the first chance to score in the 18th minute but his shot barely flew over the bar. And then charlie Villani had the misfortune of watching a delicate chip and a free kick both hit the bar within minutes.

Juventus fielded only one new player, midfielder Pat Devito, who had a quiet first half but enjoyed a much better second half and almost scored with a powerful strike which Sproul did well to deflect.

While predicting the for-tunes of both clubs is fraught with danger, it is safe to say Juventus looks the better bet while Hellas has problems.

souls for a sponsorship dollar?

There is ample evidence that in some sports, the governing body has ceased to govern and has handed over control of the sport to entrepreneurs and management tropreneurs and management agencies.

There also is ample evidence to suggest that at least one prominent sporting goods manufacturer has the ability and the means to manipulate the election of key officers in various international sports in order to influence them later.

As a result, sport at the top level has become almost completely show business, with the emphasis on winning at all costs, and our table to the supplementation of the supplementation of involvement with sponsors ... a tening fact in itself.

The committee in its report "regrets" that among the silent 52 were 10 "sports of significance", but it nevertheless gleaned enough information to come to the staggering conclusion that sports sponsorship has ballooned into an industry worth more than $128 million a year.

As for the manipulation of key sports officials, far-fetched as it may sound, no less an authority than Horst Dessler, president of Adidas, interviewed by the committee, candidly admitted that Adidas kept a file of information on the election of officers in international sports organisations. He went on to say that "sport, like anything else, is subject to politics. It would surprise a good many sports enthusiasts, who just want to enjoy their favorite game, to know how political sport has become. It is great pity."

As far as soccer is concerned, there is no doubt that television has far too powerful an influence on the game, and manipulates World Cup schedules even to the extent of insisting that the games in 1970 in Mexico be played in the afternoon despite being warned about the danger to the players.

The commercial manipulation that resulted in Mexico being awarded the 1986 World Cup is a well-documented scandal.

Among over 70 recommendations made by the committee is one that calls for an investigation to be made into the financial involvement of Adidas with FIFA and the International Olympic Committee:

Another recommendation calls for the British Government to refer to the Office of Fair Trading the relationship between Mark McCormack's International Management Group (IMG) and various spots events to establish whether a monopoly exists.

"It seems most undesirable that an organisation should be able to represent a governing body, sponsor a significant number of top players, negotiate television, cable and satellite contracts and sell merchandising rights. The situation is pregnant with conflict of interests and cannot command public confidence:

What, you may well be asking, has all this to do with Australia and in particular, with Australian soccer?

Quite a lot, actually already has suffered as a result of the shameless manipulations by the supine World Cup organising committee that saw us shuffled off into imboolong with New Zealand, Chinese Taipei and Israel ... making us the pariahs of the soccer world despite our having appeared, along with New Zealand, in a previous Final series.

And as a result of the ASF's involvement with West-Nally, an arrangement that is beginning to look less and less flicely to be of great heefit to Australian soccer, our governing body virtually has surrendered control of the game to a commercial organisation.

So far, the only impact West Nally seems to have had on our game is the cancellation or see the grounds that the cancel and a namyone honestly say, hand on heart, that our domestic game has been improved in any way by the involvement of West-Nally?

The man they call "Mad Mick" has stormed on to the NSL stage with Sunshine-George Cross, with the forlorn Thope that what he claims is unfair discrimination directed against him by referees, will be a thing of the past.

That sort of nickname reinforces referees' opinions that Mick McGorian is a troublemaker. The man himself is a very aggressive player, which also doesn't help, but he's sick and tired of being singled out by the men in

And when you're suspended for a year after being found guilty of violent conduct, a suspension reduced on appeal to 10 weeks, you don't do your cause any good. McGorian was sent off, while playing for Frankston Pines against Box Hill late in 1982 and initially incurred a one year suspension.

"One of our supporters was watching our game against Juventus the other week, before the Buffalo Gold Summer Cup final between Hellas and Croatia. He was standing next to the cup final officials and he heard them talking about me. One was saying things like, in you have done him for that. That's the sort of thing I wad to the property of the past couple of seasons. Said is a fience competitor. "The way things are with me now, another player can kick me as hard as he likes in the back and get away with it, but as soon as I get stuck in, I'm a marked man."

Sunshine-George Cross will rely on basically the same players two look the club to a 5th placed finish in last year's Victorian State league. Despite the big jump in playing standards, McGorian won't be overawed.

"Once you're out on the park, reputations don't count for anything. If I can make a fool out of Alan Davidson then I'll make a fool out of Alan Davidson then I'll make a fool out of him. I don't care what an opponent has done, what sort of reputation he's got, what sort of a star everyone else makes him out to e. It's just him and me and a football, and the better man will win.

"I don't cheat. There are a lot of players out here who just live off their names, they go through the motions for 90 minutes and get away with it because everyone says what good players they used to be."

McGorian, 27, came here from his native Liverpool in 1979, with the State League season just 10 games old. He'd played with Bootle amateurs in England, in the Cheshire League, alongside John Cullen, now with Frankston Pines, and Dave Griffiths, now with Croydon.

Slavia, then in State League, at first rejected McGorian in favor of bringing out Cullen and Griffith who had been with Everton. When Slavia heard that McGorian was going to contact Melbourne Croatia, it had a swift change of heart but McGorian spent most of the remainder of the 1979 season playing in the McGorian wanted the fee lowered but Stavia wouldn't budge. Their stand-off drag-ended McGorian for five weeks, for allegedly being a bad influence on other senior players. The VSF backed Slavia. Had that five week suspension lasted in full McGorian would have been out of action until a week after the June transfer deadline and, if he wanted to keep playing, would have been forced to stay with Slavia on its terms.

Slavia on its terms.

The day before the deadline, Tony Vrzina, then coach of Slavia, arranged a deal which saw McGorian switch to Frankston Pines for a 50,000 transfer fee.

The next threat to McGorian's career came in 1882 in a Dockerty Cup quarter-final match against Morwell Falcons McGorian, throwing lis weight forward in an attempt to break out of a tackle by David Neal, broke his leg.

Just two games after recovering from this setback, McGorian's career again was in jeopardy. Near the end of the 1983 season, playing against Box Hill, he clashed with the Hillmen's stopper Donald Brownlie. "It was a pretty niggly game to begin with. McGorian was suspended for a year but appealed and only was put out of action for 10 weeks. Sushine-George Cross signed him for 34,000 early in 1983, even though he still had to serve his suspension.
"My first game for Sunshine-George Cros was against Polonia. I was only on the park for two minutes when Chris Bambridge booked me. That's the sort of thing I have to put up with from referees. I was disappointed with Chris, but he's one of the better refs, there's no doubt about that.

Young players may have their delicious but erratic tastes of glory, but their star can shine brightly only to expire within minutes. It is the 'ioldies' who command the most respect, and who best are able to stir the crowds. Their deeds are well-documented, perhaps even embellished through exaggeration. After all, they have to be good to have lasted so long. Makes you wonder, doesn't it, why older players get so coy about their age. West Adelaide Hellas plans to baffle the NSL with science this year. In an unprecedented step, aw coach Sam Sa labasidis has decided to incorporate his version of the theory of relativity into his match plans.

Albert Einstein would turn in his grave if he knew that his theory now revolved around the use of cousins George Konstandopoulos and John Panagis as the wide midfielders in Wests' 4-4-2 formation.

It's stretching truth to call these leenagers cousins. They've progressed from kicking a ball about in their backyards to kicking it together yards to kicking it together or Port Adelaide, Assuri and now West Adelaide Hellas as with South Australian junior state teams and the state youth team.

The parallel in their careers only is broken by Konstandopoulos, who stayed with Azurri for a few more games than Panagis, who was first lo pull on a West Adelaide Halas strip. That was last year and while Panagis struggled to overcome a bad hip injury in the latter half of the season, it was Konstandopoulos who found himself a regular in the first team, then coached by Peter Koulizos, who had become caretaker coach after Alan Vest's departure.

"We'll go great this year once we settle in We've got guys that want to play for the club, not like last year," says Konstandopoulos.

"We're better now because we're so much fitter. We're going to surprise a lot of teams," says Panagis.

"And boy can we run. We just run and run and run, all day long, and that's where we're going to wear down a lot of these sides with older players," says Konstandopoulos.

John Panagis

"Yeah, and we're playing better soccer too." Panagis adds. "We're playing a lot of one touch stuff, Salabasidis says that the two main things he wants are running and the first time lootball. He doesn't want us to dribble too much but if we're in a one-on-one situation up front, then we use our own discretion as to whether we take the man on or llay the ball off."

"We've got to be the first ones to get back to help out the godfather, that's what I call Nell McGachey, and Graham Honeyman. My own personal opinion is that Graham is better in midfield but don't get me wrong. Like Nell, he's a brilliant player and he's doing a great job for us in defence, says Konstandopoulos.

"Salabasidis is a good coach," says Panagis. He's not just a good commentator of the game, he's also a good demonstrator. At training we work right through the way he wants us to play."

If the enthisasm of these two stars of the future is infectious, watch out for Wests this year. Konstandopoulos has no fears about the team's future in 1984.

"We'll have a good run this year, make no mistake about that. The spirit around the place is great," he blurts.

Both Konstandopoulos and Panagis are aiming to play for Australia. Konstandopulos, who turned 19 last month, has missed his chance at national youth team level so now he wants to make his mark as a senior NSL player then, hope-fully, as a senior Socceroo.

Panagis turns 18 on Wednes-day, March 28. He still reckons that he can grab a spot in the national youth team. If he does he'it use that as the basis for a future assault on a berth in the senior Socceroo side.

ANDREW DETTRE described the ASF's National Coaching Scheme as "sub-standard" in our February 22 issue. Detre went on to say that "almost anybody can gain a senior certificate. . . . Yet it takes three to five years of parttime study to work in Holland, West Germany and other places .

By KEN KONTRA

• Ken Kontra is a former Victorian State coach.

It is indeed pleasing to hear the virtual admission by Sir Arthur George that all is not well with our coaching set up, even if it took nine years to recognise this obvious fact!

The problem is that the ASF, through ignorance or negligence, has employed people who are neither qualified nor suitable to do a job for Australian soccer and any aspirations we may have had were doomed from the outset by consistantly putting square pegs in a round hole.

I must say that Sir Arthur George's comments, while encouraging, do not inspire confidence with regards to the future. Licensing of NSL and First Division coaches may sound impressive but is this the real solution and the right start? I think not.

think not. First of all, who would set the standards by which coaches would be judged and licensed? The ASF? I am afraid its record in the selection of coaches is not too impressive! Worthington and the "lads" perhaps? Well now, that would be a joke! Surely, if we want to improve the coaching scene, they ought to come under scrutiny themselves, rather than judge others.

Secondly, why start at the top? Why not include ALL coaches in the all scheme? After all, the future of our game depends on the supply of technically well prepared players, therefore the role of the junior coach cannot be over-emphasised.

well prepared players, therefore the role of the junior coach cannot be over-emphasised. We can import the best club coaches in the world, but their ability to perform would always depend on the material at their disposal. In my next article I shall elaborate on this and put forward suggestions, which, I trust, may be of some assistance to the 'decision makers'.

So, we have an interesting problem on our hands, which could be summed up as follows. Top coaches need top players to be effective, and conversely, top players need a top coach to bring the best out of them, individually and collectively.

Bringing out top, club coaches is only part of the solution and as we cannot afford to bring out teams of top players (nor is this desirable) for them to work with, therefore the development of local talent is of paramount importance.

Any scheme which does not recognise this fact is doomed to failure and unless we tackle the whole of the coaching set-up — seniors, juniors, developmental coaching etc, in an organised manner, we are applying bandaids where major surgery is required!

For the sake of Australian soccer, I hope that we have learned by our mistakes and tackle the problem realistically and totally, rather than in bits and pleces!

And there can be no greater measure of our ability to develop the raw material for top class soccer.

Andrew's suggestion that mates from the "old country" made the State Directors' posts a closed shop is an indictment of the ability, of the respective State Federations, as employers.

The appointments are made by the board of management of ach federation which vets applications on qualifications and the bility to perform the tasks.

Back to Perin's newspaper article. He said: "You've got to go out and learn from qualified men, put what you learn into prac-tice, then keep looking for new ideas."

That's a sound philosophy from a man who admitted to being rather skeptical about the coaching scheme but who was sufficiently open-minded to give it a go and learn from somebody of the coaching scheme in the coaching scheme but who was sufficiently open-minded to give it a go and learn from somebody of the coaching scheme in the coaching sch

No doubt, I've laid myself open to having to run the gauntlet of Andrew's vitriolic pen. Let's end with an open invitation to Andrew. Any time you are available, please come, as a non-participant observer if you like, and watch our coaching courses being conducted in Victoria. Acquaint yourself with the realities of the National Coaching Scheme and then criticise, constructively, if Gatenby, and now a worldclass guest?

By DEANNA DelUDICIBUS

For many visiting players, a change of climate, style and play and a new lifestyle are all part of the transition form an old life

Such is the case for Adelaide's newest import, Adelaide City's Mark Gatenby.

City's Mark Gatenby

The 23-year-old Middlesbrough-born central striker is Gity's recruit from New Zealand's Christchurch Rangers. Gatenby's connection with Australia is City's centre back Neville Flounders whom he knew during his days with Whitby Town in England

"I had known Neville for a number of years in England and when I went to New Zealand we kept in touch," he said.

"When he invited me to Australia for a holiday, City gave me the chance to train there and then sign up, so I couldn't knock it back."

City's decision to sien Gatenby was mode with the city of the country of the knock it back."

City's decision to sign Gatenby was made with relative ease considering the year-long wait in England for his transfer to New Zealand.
"It was purely by chance that I saw an advertisement in a magazine looking for players with Rangers in New Zealand, so I applied.
"But I waited 12 months for a reply, then suddenly I had five days to fly out of England.
"I was out of work at the time so I grabbed the chance to go."

"I was out of work at the time so I grabbed the chance to go."
Gatenby expects to be with City for two seasons. According to Gatenby, opportunities for improvement in soccer in Australia are far greater than in New Zealand and he is also impressed with the standard of play.
"The standard here, as compared with New Zealand, is better overall," he said, adding: "and I've only seen Adelaide teams so far.
"As for the future, well, I would like to stay for about two years and enjoy it as much as I can.
"But i have no definite plans. I'll just wait and see how things work out."
Gatenby has his parents, two brothers and a sister in Middlesbrough and they are 'Not too keen on football'. He would like to return home to see them when he gets some money together.
He finds Australia's training methods have an affinity to those used in New Zealand, but different to those in England. "I felt a lot more time was spent on the tactical side of Football in England, but I haven't noticed much of it here or in New Zealand.
"City's style of play is so different too. They take the European influence where they alse from the hards."

"City's style of play is so different too. They take the Enpean influence where they play from the back, whereas in England they play with long balls down the middle — which is more fluent and better to watch, but you tend to lose possession, so I guess there's a good balance there somewhere."
According to Adelaide City's sports director Bob D'Ottavi, Gatenby has proved to be an excellent acquisition, but the Englishman has exhausted the club's import quota.
"We are allowed only two temporary visa players in Les Carter and Gatenby, so, our only other alternative is to bring in a guest player," D'Ottavi said.
D'Ottavi is presently playing a waiting game for the return from work commitments of City's coach Edmund Kreft.
"It's pretty hard to say but it could be another three weeks before Kreft comes back, but I won't be going anywhere until he's back for good.
"If and when I do so away it will be to leak for the return of the contraction of the contrac

"We've got alot of fight in the young players we've acqui-red and have changed our style of play which will be much more attractive to watch and we are relying more on pure skill and filtenss," he said.

Herbert goes to Uni

Ricki Herbert (pictured), a member of Sydney Olympic's National Cup winning side last year, has joined newly promoted New Zealand National League club Cowan's Auckland University.

With University, Her-bert will be under the wing of Wally Hughes, coach of the Fijian team beaten 10-0 by Australia in Melbourne during the 1981 World Cup eliminators.

Appointed by the stu-dents last December, fol-lowing two years out of the game, Hughes has been active in the transfer mar-ket, signing current inter-nationals Herbert (who returned to Auckland in order to participate in. New Zealand's Olympic campaign). Peter Henry and Glen Adam. Disillusioned after his Fiji experience, the Liverpudlian has now regained an appetite for coaching and appears to have the playing personnel to justplaying personnel to just-ify this newly acquired op-timism.

Macleods to make Fawkner mig

Frank Macleod can't get over how friendly everyone is at his new club Fawkner. Bruno Cozzella and Cesare Fattore even showed Mac-leod the scars he left on their legs from their last encounter.

"A few people at Fawkner said that they were quite pleased to see me at the club. They said they'd rather have me playing with them than against them," said Macleod.

quite pieased to see me at the cum. Iney Said they'd rather have me playing with them than against them," said Macleod.

Macleod already has heard the rumor mongers' rumblings. It's only because he's the coach's brother that he was bought, they say.

"That sort of talk doesn't bother me. It was made quite plain to me from the start that Gus would be the coach and I would be the player and that's the way we would relate to each other at the club," said Macleod.

"I know that like every other player there, if I play poorly. I'll get dropped. Gus has shown a lot of had I'm dams sure that I'm not about to let him or the club down.

"Being selected in "Soccer Action's State League Team of the Year last year was a big thing for me. It's the best honor I've won in soccer and looking at my name next to the names of some good players gave me a lot of confidence."

The Frank Macleod renowned for his vocal ability spoken away from a soccer arena.
"Ibecome completely absorbed in a game, totally involved for 90 minutes and I talk a lot. Off the park I'm quiet. I don't really know what happens to me when I'm playing, It's just one of these things."

The Macleod brothers — Frank, Gus and Heidelberg defender Don — are respected highly within Victorian soccer circles. While Gus, as a player with Green Gully Ajax, was winning top scorer honors in the 1981 State League, and Don, ex-Nottingham Forest, rapidly was earning a reputation as one of the strongmen among NSL defenders, Frank was playing with less glamorous clubs like Albion Rovers and Park Rangers (now Kew City).

However, Frank had his best season in State League last year, with Albion, under the coaching of Hugh Murney, and team manager Joe Docherty, both close friends.

Albion was Macleod's first club here. The Glasgow-born, 29-year-old, played with Greenock Juniors in Scotland for six months before migrating to Australia with his wife in 1978. They stayed with Bobby Nisbet for six weeks. Nisbet was playing with Albion so Macleod came down and trained. "It was a shock to the system at first. I hadn't been used to training so hard and it took me a long time to get fit."

However, It didn't take too long for Macleod to strike up close friendships which have endured. That's will his decision to leave and join Fawkner this year was so hard. "The supporters at the club a pick mit the committee. I was upset with a few things but I'm not good friends down there. Albion improving, soccerwise incessing to the very hard to bure good players down to a club that lacks sponsorship and has some management problems. Not that Albion is on its own in that regard."

Macleod only played two senior games with Albion in 1978. The following season, however, he found himself being used by coach Bill McArthur in a variety of positions.

"I didn't like Billy as a coach. He used me malny as a marker but I kept playing in so many different positions that I never really settled in. Me and Billy had a few disagreements over this, and I soon learned how wrong it can be to speak back to some coaches when Billy dumped me at the end of the season. And I was a free player too! It wan't as if I was on a big contract. Billy brought me in front of the committee and said that even though I was a free agent, the club was cancelling my registration because he didn't want me.
"But listen to this one Who should phone up Hugh Murney and Joe Docherty at Park Rangers and recommend me to them, but Billy McArthur? To this day I've never been able to work that one out."

this day I've never been able to work that one out."

Park Rangers were in the Second Division of the Metropolitan League when Macleod Joined. He stayed with the club for three seasons then switched to Albion, not long after Murney and Docherty had moved there for the 1883 season.

But what's the attraction of Fawkner?

"It's got nothing to do with money and there's no big stars there. I just like what Gus is trying to do, to put a bit of dig into a skilful team. If the blend is right, we'll have a great year. Everyone at the club already is talking about making the top four and that's what we expect to do. I think that the top four probably will be Fawkner, Polonia, Morwell and Box Hill.

that's what we expect to do. I think that the top four probably will be Fawkner, Polonia, Morwell and Box Hill.

"There's no other side in State League with as much bite. I'm not going to make bold predictions about winning championships and the like. All I'll say is that there won't be a side in the league that we'll fear."

And within 25 minutes of the start, Polonia had acquainted itself with a curious spot on the Box Jill cross-bar, about the Box Jill cross-bar, about the Hond purpht in from the left had purpht in from the left had purpht in the spot acted like a magnet for shots from Greg Czapnik and Janusz Przybyła.

Greg Czapnik played two grata one-twos with Noel Mitten in the 16th minute, finally receiving the ball courteousy of a cheeky Mitten in the 16th minute, footed, against the ball curten backheel, only to shoot, left footed, against the ball in to Przybyła in the 24th milliute. The Polish striker slipped past a defender then struck ball well, only to watch it smack against that strange spot on the bar and bounce-clear mitted defect.

A minute later Przybyla re-peated the dose!

Hennessy, of course, is a central defender. And a good one at that.

But back to the action.

A good break by Keenan on the left started the move leading to Box Hill's 43rd minute goal. Keenan delayed, then passed to Darren White who played the ball inside to Matt McDonald. The little Box Hill midfielder burst through a tackle then squared the ball to Smith who got the vital touch that made it 2-1.

It was a far more determined and aggressive Box Hill that came out in the second half, but Polonia's third goal took a lot of the fight out of the Hillmen.

With Box Hill still trying to organise itself defensively, Gardiner quickly took a free kick about 30 metres out, slipping the ball to Stefan Mila who struck it sweetly, into the bottom left hand corner of goal.

Neil Collyer will be out to prove a point when he lines up for North Dandenong against Fawkner in the first main round of the 1984 Dockerty Cup at Smith Reserve on Sunday. State League clubs entering the Dockerty Cup on Sunday, seven are playing on their home grounds.

The engineering of Dockerty Cup draws to suit the stronger State League clubs is a disgrace and Metro clubs should be forcing their board of management to make an all out push at VSF board level to have this flagrant elltism stopped at long last.

Metro sides with chances to upset more fancied opponents would appear to be Karingal United (which meets Albion), Springvale City (which meets Northcote), and East Brunswick (which meets Ringwood Wilhelmina).

Really, it's none of my business: if it's fine with FIFA, it's okay with me, too. If the rest of the world meekly accepts an anachronism, with a straight face, why the hell should I care?

But I still find it amu-

The matter I'm referring to, of course, is the continued idiocy of Brit-ain fielding four separate "national" teams in ain fielding four separate "national" teams in World Cups and European Championships. The fact that none of them has managed to reach this year 's finals in France make this lunacy even more pronounced.

Britain, as we all know, competes as such at the Olympics; there's no separate England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. It's the same in other sports, too: world or European championships see a "British" entry. In soccer we have to have four.

The reasons stretch soccer we have to have four ...

The reasons stretch back into antiquity. Britain — you are told repeatedly — was the cradle of soccer and has always maintained four different, independent "associations." The fact that they don't represent independent countries, with border separating them, has never bothered anyone.

Ah yes, you'll hear — but they are different races: the English are far removed from the Welsh, not to mention the Irish or Scots. So they deserve to parade their serve to parade their national teams indepen-dently.

If that was true other, less impractical coun-tries could step forward with similar arguments.

Czechoslovakia could Czechoslovakia could field at least two teams, Czechs and Slovaks who are at least as far from one another as are the English and the Scots. Or what about the Spanish where the Catalonians and Basques, perhaps even the Andalucians, would feel entitled to the same treatment?

Belvirin would definiwould feel entitled to the same treatment?

Belgitim would definitely qualify for two teams, for the Flemmish and the Walloon populations, the Swiss could demand three for their German, French and Italian citizens, the Yugoslavs could have several for the Serbs, Croats, Bosnians, Slovenians and others while the USSR—with 270 million people—would surely be justified in fielding separate teams at least for Russians, Uzbeks, Armenians and another four or five.

But they don't, none of

But they don't; none of them does. Only Britain. And I rather suspect that the others let them; it's the least painful sporting suicide; lem-mings in soccer boots. The way things are,

The way things are, none of the four British none of the four British teams has an earthly chance of winning a World Cup or even European title on its own, it wouldn't have happened in 1966 either except for the benign approval of FIFA, allowing England to play ALL its matches (even the originally un-scheduled ones) at Wemscheduled ones) at Wembley.

It would be quite a different story if Britain would field a team — a combined team, that is.

Just imagine: a combination of the best of England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland together — the Robsons, Hoddles with the Rushes, Whitesides, Sou-nesses and Stapletons.

That would be quite a team, enough to scare hell out of the Germans, Italians and South Americana

But it won't happen; pride and a pointless mania for "independen-ce" is likely to keep the four associations apart.

They are, after all, British — and different. They'd rather go down separately than succeed together.

One or two more major blows at World Cup level finally may induce them to pool their resources and apply for FIFA membership as Britain.

So we simply have to wait for that to happen.

Gerets paid $7600 bribe to win

The Brussels public prosecutor's office says officials and players of two top Belgian clubs arranged bribes to fix the match which gave S Liege the Belgian Standard gave Stander. Liege the 1981-2 Belgian league championship.

Paul Mariner

A spokesman said Eric Gerets, Captain of the Belgian national team and Standard captain in 1981-2, and two Standard officials had confessed to paying a 420,000 franc (about $7,600) bribe to Waterschei to secure vice Waterschei to secure vic-

Ruud Geels

He was questioned for several hours before being released early in the morning.

Bribery was first sus-ected when a magispected when a magis-trate investigating a separate case of alleged il-licit transfer payments for Belgian soccer players discovered unex-plained payments to Gerets in Standard's ac-counts.

One of Belgium's top bankers, Eddy Wauters of Kredietbank, and a former soccer inter-national, Jef Jurion, have been charged with tax fraud in the transfers case. Both men were detained for three weeks but released this month. After the confessions, the inquiry will now focus on the "black mon-ey" used for the bribes.

Fixing sports matches is not illegal under Belgian law but the National Soccer Union imposes stiff penalties on offenders.

Standard trainer Ray-mond Geothals is said to have asked club chairman Roger Petit to give Gerets the money. He handed it over to Waterschei just before the match, which Stan-dard won 3-1 to snatch the title from rivals An-derlecht.

Goethals and Petit ad-mitted their roles in the case and Roland Jan-ssens of Waterschei ac-knowledged that his club received the money.
None of the four men has been charged.

$7.8 mil. offers for Robson, Rummenigge

The Italians have two dominating characteristics where soccer is concerned mination and lots of cash.

Reflecting this, at least four Italian clubs have been pres-suring England and Manches-ter Untied captain Bryan, Robson over the past few weeks to join them.

The bidders have pushed their price above two million stg ($3.1 million).

Inter Milan called Robson at ome this week and was not satisfied when Robson said his club deals with all offers. However the Italians seem to have money to burn at the moment as they are also trying to sign the West German king of soccer, Karleinz Rummenigge, with a $4.7 million package. The Bayern Munich striker would receive a basic salary of $850,000 apart from numerous other perks. Perhaps some arrangement with the Italians could be made since one other team ru-una bella vittoria.

E cosi' la Juventus ha iniziato la sua grande avventura in Lega Nazionale con una bella vittoria.

E poiche' chi ben comincia e' alla meta' dell'opera, tutti i tifosi juventini (olire che comitat), tenici, e giocatori) hanno un ottimo motivo per rallegrarsi. Il fatto, poi, che le due reti siano state messe a segno dal nuovo acquisto Sweeney, dovrebbe essere un ulteriore motivo di soddisfazione per tutti.

E, siamo onesti, c'e' da scommettere che qualcuno vorrebbe aggiungere che chi scrive queste note dovrebbe rimangiarsi quanto ha scritto nelle ultime settimane sulle limitazioni della squadra e sulla sterilita dei due strikers acquistati quest'anno.

IL SOLE SEMBRA SPLENDERE A FAWKNER

Intanto a Fawkner comincia spuntare l'alba di un'altra stagione nella Lega Statale e dai bagliori che si cominciano ad intravvedere sembra che sara' una stagione di sole. Il nuovo allenatore Gus McLeod sembra stia riuscendo a mettere assieme il tipo di squadra che dovrebbe far tremare tutte le avversarie de, campionato. Ed il motivo principale di questo felice stato di cose è che, secondo "Big Gus", il comitato gli ha dato tutto l'appoggio possible ed immaginabile e la sicurezza che sta avendo a che fare con "gente seria, capace e impegnata."

Naturalmente terra' sempre gli ochi aperti se il mercato offiria' qualche buon giocatore a buon prezzo, ma anche come stanno le cose adesso "Big Gus" si ripromette di fare motio bene nel suo primo anno come allenatorne, e ci assicura anche che a 33 anni non si fara' vincere dalla teniazione di giocare con il Fawhire (fra l'altro non ancora il transerimento come giocatore dal Croydon).

lpak, neresen rezultat je realan za obe strane, bez obzira na zelje i komentare clanova uprave i navijaca.

Jedno je signurno da JUST prvi put pocinje sezonu sa vedrim izgledima za skoru buducnost. Izgleda, nece biti borbe za opstanak. Treba biti otvoren da JUST nema tim za osvajanje sampionske titule. Za taj podvig potrebna su bar dva dobra navalna igraca. Gde ih pronaci? "Prijatelji" iz Jugoslavije ponudili su igrace, koji su vec potpisali za druge klubove (Savic, Nikolic), tako da se trose zivci i vreme bez klubove (Savic, Nikolic), tako da se trose zivci i vreme bez rezultata. Ali, ne treba odusta-ti. Mozda se jedan takav rasni strelac krije i j JUSTovim re-dovima?! Bice kasno ako nest-ane kao Crino, Latif i mnogi drugi.

J.U.S.T. DOMACIN. MAKE-DONIJA GOSTIJE

U nedelju 11. marta "plavi" docekuju na svom igralistu u Footscrayu Brisbane City. Utakmica pocinje u 3 po podne. Jos nije poznato protiv koga ce mladi tim igrati predigru. Ako JUSTovi igraci pokazu igru iz prvog poluve-mena protiv Makedonije, priredice veliku radost svojim navijacima. Makedonija se u nedelju 11. marta "seli" u Australijansku konferenciju. Odlazi u goste Newcastlu, koji je uvek bio tvrd orah na svome terenu. Croatia je gost Adelade Citya, dok svi Ostali klubovi iz Melburna igraju pred svojom publikom. Igraju se i dva lokalna derbija.

ZELENO SVETLO U MET-ROPOLTAN KUPU

ROPOLTAN KUPU

Sva tri nasa kluba sa uspehom prebrodili prvo kolo Metropolitan kupa, koji se nastavlja sredinom sezone.
Altona Gate/VARDAR savladao je u gostima South Oskleigh sa 1:0 (0:0). Igraci Vardara igrali su zrelije, ali navala je bila mekana. Ipak presudoje brznongi Cele Talevski, strelac jedinog gola, koji je odveo Vardara u drugo
